What is CogSURF?

Connecting Minds, Making Waves.

About CogSURF

CogSURF is Montréal's largest undergraduate conference in cognitive science, bringing together top researchers from McGill University, Concordia, and Université de Montréal to share discoveries, attend symposia, and network with leading industry professionals.

Cognitive science - the interdisciplinary study of the mind and its faculties - emerged from the 20th century cognitive revolution and is now embraced by over 100 universities worldwide. By pooling insights from psychology, linguistics, computer science, philosophy, and neuroscience, the discipline has revolutionized how we study language, reasoning, and artificial intelligence. CogSURF showcases the next generation of innovators in this rapidly evolving field.

Our Mission

CogSURF empowers undergraduate researchers to contribute to one of science's greatest frontiers: understanding the mind. By bringing together students across cognitive science's core disciplines, we create a space where interdisciplinary collaboration drives discovery and launches academic careers.
